THE GREATER WOMAN'S MEDICAL COLLEGE!
ALL ABOARD!

On February third at seven o'clock in the evening the Guarantors of the Greater Woman's Medical College met at the College.

The occasion was one of rejoicing that the membership of the Committee is complete and that seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000) is pledged (one-fourth already paid in) to meet the expenses of the campaign which shall add to the funds of the College one and one-half million dollars ($1,500,000).

A delightful dinner was served under the direction of Mrs. Frederick W. Rockwell, a member of the Corporation.

Dr. Henry D. Jump, Chairman of the Committee of Guarantors, presided as Toastmaster, and introduced as the first speaker the guest of the evening, Dr. W. W. Keen, Professor of Surgery at the College from 1883 to 1889. Dr. Keen interested the company by reminiscent anecdotes of those early days. Few of us realize that when he was a medical student at Jefferson no medical school in the United States owned a microscope. Now every freshman student must own one.

Mrs. Starr and Mr. Sheppard then spoke briefly, Mr. Sheppard particularly outlining the critical situation of the College in 1921, at which time the decision was made to reorganize its affairs, secure funds, and to place the institution upon a sound financial basis.

Dean Tracy spoke of the achievements of the College under conditions of limited endowment, buildings and equipment. She pointed out the needs for space, for equipment, for additional personnel, if the College is now to progress and to continue its tradition for clinical service and for the training of competent practitioners.

A new bacteriological laboratory, new equipment for the department of anatomy, more space for the laboratory of chemistry, for the pathological museum, for the department of pharmacology; and the pressing need for hospital space, wards, operating rooms, children's house, and dispensaries, were the needs Dr. Tracy stressed.

She spoke of two new services included in her vision of the Greater Woman's Medical College; a health clinic in which first and second year students may acquire an expertness in knowledge of health, as in the medical and surgical clinics third and fourth year students acquire an expertness in knowledge of disease; and a semi-endowed hospital pavilion in which self-respecting, middle-class patients may have private room care at a moderate weekly charge.

Both of these services would be new in Philadelphia and could not fail to win public interest and sympathetic support.

Mr. King, representing the firm of architects, Ritter & Shay, who has studied the College and Hospital buildings thoroughly with a view to determining the possibility of advantageous rebuilding and expansion at the present site, spoke briefly on his findings. He outlined what might be done at North College Avenue and Twenty-first Street to modernize the entire plant, and expressed it as his opinion that for the same expenditure new and modern buildings could be erected to greater advantage on a site elsewhere.

Miss Francis and Dr. Walker spoke on the machinery necessary for collecting endowment funds, and assured all present that we are launched upon a difficult enterprise.

Dr. Jump assured the Guarantors that one and one-half million dollars ($1,500,000) was only the beginning of what we shall need and eventually expect to secure.

The company received this news without flinching and promptly authorized the Chair to appoint two committees: one to discuss and decide upon the campaign method and machinery, Dr. Walker, Chairman; and the other to consider the question of the site of the Greater Woman's Medical College, North College Avenue or elsewhere, Mr.
Sheppard, Chairman.

Dr. Jump was elected as permanent Chairman of the Guarantors, Miss Francis, Secretary, and Mr. Ely J. Smith, Treasurer.

An early meeting will be called to hear reports from the two important committees.

In the meantime, Alumnae, stand at attention, and be ready for marching orders.
ALUMNAE NOTES

Dr. Mary E. Brydon, 1911, Director of Bureau of Child Welfare of State Board of Health of Virginia, delivered one of the special lectures in Hygiene to the senior class in October.

Dr. M. Edith McBride, class of 1910, has been elected Second Vice-President of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society. As Chairman of the County Medical Secretaries she becomes a valuable factor in State Medical circles.

Dr. Arline Beal, 1923, visited North College Avenue in October on a hurried trip through Philadelphia. She is now studying in England en route to the foreign field. An impressive meeting under the auspices of the Lutheran Women's League of Philadelphia did honor to Dr. Anna S. Kugler of the class of 1879, now retired after 34 years' service in India, Dr. Lydia S. Woerner of the class of 1899, and Dr. Beal who is appointed to take Dr. Kugler's place on the field.

Among the many letters on our seventy-fifth birthday comes a note and a present for her Alma Mater from Margaret Harrison Polk, 1893, of Shanghai, China. The kindly wishes and thoughts from those so far away spreads even greater cheer.

Through Miriam Bell, 1923, comes "greetings to the Celebration of the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Founding of Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania from Hackett Medical College, David Gregg Hospital, and Turner Training School for Nurses, Canton, China, and from Dr. Bell herself, who though she is busy in the present, has not forgotten the pleasant association of the past nor her feeling of indebtedness to her Alma Mater."

Dr. Mary S. Danforth, 1875, was the guest of honor at a recent convention of the New Hampshire Medical Society. Her seventy-fifth birthday anniversary, and the completion of fifty years in medicine were jointly celebrated.

The Graduate Council wishes to express through the Bulletin, their deep appreciation of excellent service rendered by the retiring President, Dr. Mary Buchanan, and Secretary, Dr. Ellen C. Potter.

From China comes a most complimentary article about the work of Dr. Anne Walter-Fearn, 1893, "Physician, Club Woman, Raconteur and the Spirit of Hospitality."
Dr. Margaret Reinhart Milligan, 1924, has been appointed Assistant to Dr. Miriam Bitting-Kennedy, school physician of the Bala-Cynwyd School, and has located in Cynwyd.

Dr. Louise M. Ingersoll, 1924, visited her Alma Mater, bringing greetings from many of the Alumnae in the Far East. She is anxious to get back to Shanghai as soon as her health will permit. During the interim she is inventing needed hospital facilities and keeping an eagle eye on good candidates for foreign service.

Dr. Mary Martin-Sloop, 1906, and daughter, visited the College en route to New York. Dr. Sloop spoke enthusiastically of her work among the mountaineers of North Carolina.

Dr. Marian Bottomley-Hall, 1924, writes most interestingly of her studies at the London School of Medicine. She and her husband, Dr. Sherwood Hall, are taking a five-months' course in Tropical Medicine.

Dr. Sarah E. Worob, 1924, in a visit to Philadelphia, reports an interesting service as resident at Burlington County Hospital, Mount Holly, New Jersey.

Dr. Pearl E. Hackman, 1924, has located at Reading, Pennsylvania, and is doing eye work. We wish her every success in her new location.

National Board Bulletin of January adds the following diplomates to its list:

Dr. Edith M. Johnson—1924
Dr. Ruth Newell Brown—1924
Dr. Pearl E. Hackman—1924

Dr. Ellen C. Potter, 1903, Secretary of Welfare of Pennsylvania, delivered an impressive address on the "Spectacular Aspects of Modern Crime Versus Crime Increase" before the American Academy of Political and Social Science in Philadelphia on February 19th.

Dr. Potter, as Secretary of Welfare, is designated a member of the Alcohol Permit Board recently established by Act of Assembly in the Special Session of the Pennsylvania Legislature just adjourned.

Dr. Mary Gilbert Knowles, 1912, was in town on February 19th, looking very fit. She is returning to Europe very soon. We wish she had come up to college to see us.

Dr. Mary R. Noble, 1901, has been appointed Research Adviser on Child Welfare to the State Board of the League of Women Voters.
Dr. Frances J. Heath, 1912, writes from the Medical School of Shantung Christian University, Tsinan, Shantung, China, as follows:

Office of the Dean of Women

Shantung Christian University, Tsinan, Shantung, China.

November 11, 1925

"It is good to have mail through again, after nearly a month of warfare and interrupted mail service.

"We are having a two weeks' truce so are able to celebrate Armistice Day in fitting manner.

"Our hospital is now a first base hospital, and we are full to the brim, with an extra camp outside for which we are responsible. The top floor is filled with wounded Russians, soldiers in the employ of the Mukden Chief. The other wards are full of Chinese, and students and doctors are busy all day and often until late at night. It was three o'clock Sunday morning before we finished Saturday's operating, and Monday a new train-load arrived of whom seventy were turned over to us for care. Fracture dressings, splints and treatment of gunshot wounds are getting large emphasis these days."

Dr. Heath is now Dean of Women in the Medical Department of the Shantung Christian University.

This school is one of the seven medical schools in the membership of the Association of Medical Schools of China.

Entrance requirements include two years of pre-medical academic work, based in turn on high school graduation.

Several members of the Faculty are graduates of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania.
ANNIVERSARY VOLUME READY

The volume commemorating the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the founding of the College will appear and be ready for distribution early in 1926. The Volume consists principally of a brief account of the proceedings on the day of Commencement, forty articles contributed by Alumnae of the College and by members of the present Faculty, and a number of communications from distinguished Alumnae, both at home and in the foreign missionary field. The latter should prove particularly interesting to Alumnae of the College.

The price of the volume, which does not cover the cost of printing, has been fixed at $3.00 per copy.

If you have not placed an order in advance send for your copy at once, as the printing is limited. A slip is enclosed for your convenience.

Tear off and mail as an order.
