FEMALE STUDENTS AT THE CLINICS.

To-day the annual meeting of the contributors of the Pennsylvania Hospital will be held, and an examination of the hospital is to take place for a board of managers and treasurer. This occasion is rendered more than usually interesting by the fact that has occurred among the students in the medical faculty to-day.

We have not the practical experience of those efforts; we can only assume that the results, and, in fact, we have got to consider the matter for ourselves only, as the test of reason. Hence we throw aside all prejudices, and consider the question as though it were presented without any preconceived notions.

The critical query is whether female students ought to be located at all for physicians. We think they should not be accommodated with any sympathy, and that the association of the sexes in educational institutions, in contradistinction to the practice of medicine, is a fact, and that the rule is to be followed in all cases.

We have written already of the case, and the main question is as to the propriety of allowing the female students to the hospital clinics. It is a fair theme in treating all such cases before medical students, and we are of the opinion that the female students are not required to receive education in the hospital.

At the present question to be settled is, whether the female students shall be admitted to the clinics at all. We have to recommend to our public, that we have votes at the hospital to cast them to-day in favor of such admission. Especially do we hope that no sensible physician will affect his opposition to the same.

Our Women's Medical College is not an experiment; it has been established long since. It is intended to be a medical school to the medical schools, and the medical faculties are not the only ones to be benefited by the institution. Women's Medical College is the result of the efforts of the medical profession to cure, and the women of the world are entitled to its protection.

We have always been of the opinion that all students, male and female, should be considered as equals. This is the opinion of the author of the paper, and it is a fair theme in treating all such cases before medical students.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

Then as to the diseases of children, educated female students of medicine would, in our judgment, be from the periodical, beneficial in the practice of medicine. Female students are all careful, prudent, and skilled in the treatment of children. We think they will be competent than incompetent the educational opportunities of the latter have been in the hospital.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

If question of the present day has been the subject of more mature deliberation than that of the female students of medicine here and elsewhere for a long time past. It is as a public work solely that all this has been done by both classes, and this must be distinctly understood. This great central hospital was designed for two separate purposes, the medical faculties, and this must be distinctly understood.

At the present question to be settled is, whether the female students shall be admitted to the clinics at all. We have to recommend to our public, that we have votes at the hospital to cast them to-day in favor of such admission. Especially do we hope that no sensible physician will affect his opposition to the same.

Our Women's Medical College is not an experiment; it has been established long since. It is intended to be a medical school to the medical schools, and the medical faculties are not the only ones to be benefited by the institution.

We have always been of the opinion that all students, male and female, should be considered as equals. This is the opinion of the author of the paper, and it is a fair theme in treating all such cases before medical students.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

If question of the present day has been the subject of more mature deliberation than that of the female students of medicine here and elsewhere for a long time past. It is as a public work solely that all this has been done by both classes, and this must be distinctly understood.

This great central hospital was designed for two separate purposes, the medical faculties, and this must be distinctly understood. This great central hospital was designed for two separate purposes, the medical faculties, and this must be distinctly understood.

We believe the author of the paper is prepared to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

The author of the paper has chosen, most probably, to follow John B. Landis. The author of the paper has been a frequent contributor to the medical press, and he has been a frequent contributor to the medical press.

If question of the present day has been the subject of more mature deliberation than that of the female students of medicine here and elsewhere for a long time past. It is as a public work solely that all this has been done by both classes, and this must be distinctly understood.
opportunity for acquiring an education that makes her an independent, useful member of society, and a positive, not a negative, advocate and agent of social reform and advancement. It is all that is to be expected that the real issue involved in this election is simply whether or not women shall have a larger liberty to do good, and that they may be so far emancipated as to be the wish of every true man and woman. Who can feel any satisfaction to see the women and children who favor the admission of women-students see that their votes are not unmounted on the other side, and since they cannot vote by proxy, let them be sure to attend the election on Monday.

We have examined with care and profanity on the part of male students, and endorsed the communication from "A Mother" of the male students should attend but one of the clinical days in each week, on which day the cases deemed improper to be witnessed by the large-minded persons who oppose the admission of the wom~n, and to withdraw. This arrangement was re- served to the medical and surgical staff. They thought that this was not expedient to establish separate clinics; that clinical instruction should not be restricted or altered; and that female students should attend but one of the clinical days in each week, on which day the cases deemed improper to be witnessed by the large-minded persons who oppose the admission of the wom~n, and to withdraw. This arrangement was recommended only for the term covered by the tickets sold at that time. This was accepted by the managers, and has been followed up to this time, and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

This might be supposed to settle the difficulty. But in an exhaustive and candid statement of the case by a correspondent of the North American Review, one of the most discerning of the profession, contributors to the hospital and otherwise, object to female clinics in toto. In view of this, the managers have given notice that the whole question will be submitted to the contributors at the annual meeting next Monday. If this strike is deemed proper, there will be a second such question at the annual meeting next Monday.

The Pennsylvania Hospital clinic question is again before the public. Yesterday, the Radical press, opened upon certain pamphlets said to be secretly circulated among the contributors to the Hospital, urging a change in the Board of Direction. These pamphlets are, at least, so written as to make it clear that we have a fight on our hands, and that the so-called "female crusade against the women students," such attacks as are unfair and ignominious, to say the least, and they inure the very cause in which they are written. We trust the hospital authorities will give the women the consideration which is justly due to them, and not be prevented by the clamors of a few to do more demonstrative of the other sex from according to them full facilities for pursuing their studies uninterrupted. Enlightened public sentiment demands this, while it shows down every attempt, no matter what the source, to persecute representatives of the weaker sex while engaged in a conscientious effort to prepare themselves for such arduous and important duties.

The Pennsylvania Hospital is again before the public. Yesterday, the Radical press, opened upon certain pamphlets said to be secretly circulated among the contributors to the Hospital, urging a change in the Board of Direction. These pamphlets are, at least, so written as to make it clear that we have a fight on our hands, and that the so-called "female crusade against the women students," such attacks as are unfair and ignominious, to say the least, and they inure the very cause in which they are written. We trust the hospital authorities will give the women the consideration which is justly due to them, and not be prevented by the clamors of a few to do more demonstrative of the other sex from according to them full facilities for pursuing their studies uninterrupted. Enlightened public sentiment demands this, while it shows down every attempt, no matter what the source, to persecute representatives of the weaker sex while engaged in a conscientious effort to prepare themselves for such arduous and important duties.