The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery exhibit "Blood and Blood Products in Atomic Warfare" was recently presented at the Alert America Exhibit of Civil Defense, Interdepartmental Auditorium, Washington, D.C.

Two hundred and thirty thousand spectators viewed the exhibit which was prepared by the Blood Bank Department of the Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Maryland under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Gioconda R. Saraniero, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy, officer in charge of the Blood Bank Department. President Harry S. Truman and members of Congress were among the notables who visited this exhibit.

Doctor Gioconda R. Saraniero monitored the exhibit at the Interdepartmental Auditorium, the Convention of Military Surgeons and at the Association of Blood Banks meeting at Minneapolis, Minn.
Lieutenant Commander Gioconda R. Saraniero, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy, (WMC 1935) was officer in charge of the Blood Bank Dept. of the “Alert America” Exhibit of Civil Defense, Washington, D. C., where 235,000 spectators viewed the exhibit, among them President Truman and members of Congress.