Balance on hand June, 1912 .......... $112.93
Interest, 1912—13 .......... 4.15

$117.08

Books for Chemical Department .......... $43.00
Book for Gynecological Department .......... 5.50

48.50

Balance on hand .......... $68.58

Atlas of Microscopic Diagnosis in Gynecology (Jolly).
Handbuch der Biochemie der Menschen und der Tiere (Oppenheimer).
Accepted as read.

Report of Committee on Necrology, in the absence of Dr. Kraker, was read by Dr. Mary T. Miller, as follows:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON NECROLOGY
PRESENTED BY DR. KRAKER

 ✓ Clara J. Alexander ('89). Died April 19, 1913, in Mysore, India.
 ✓ Edith Barton ('02). Died February 20th, 1913, in Scranton, Pennsylvania.
 ✓ Annette C. Buckel ('58). Died August 17, 1912, in Piedmont, California.
 ✓ Alice Lillibridge ('00). Died October 14, 1912, in Scranton, Pennsylvania.
 ✓ Anna M. Longshore-Potts ('51). Died October 24, 1912, in San Diego, California.
 ✓ Harriet Adaline Thompson ('93). Died April 18, 1913, in Bridgeport, Connecticut.

 ✓ Dr. MARY MARGARET ARMOR, the only daughter of Margaret M. and the late Colonel David M. Armor, received her early education at the Central High School, Washington, D. C. She graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania in 1904 and then served a year as intern in the Women and Children's Hospital in San Francisco, Cal. During this hospital year she contracted tuberculosis and was compelled to go to Denver, where she stayed for a year. She then undertook to do work in the Agnes Memorial Sanitarium, and after six months there had to give up that work and then went to Colorado Springs. She stayed in Colorado for a year, but her health not improving, she went to Asheville, N. C., where she stayed for three years and a half. A few weeks before her death she returned to Washington, D. C., where she died May 24, 1912.

Dr. Edith Barton, was born at Lime Ridge, Pa., in 1862. She obtained her early education at the public schools in Lime Ridge, after which she graduated from the State Normal School, Bloomsburg, Pa. In 1902 she graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. She served the full time as intern in the Philadelphia Hospital, and also at the Philadelphia Lying-in Charity Hospital. After practicing for a short time in Sunbury, Pa., she went to practice in Scranton, Pa., where she stayed for four years. At the end of that time, owing to some cardiac condition, her health broke down and she was forced to rest for two and a half years. She then returned to her work in Scranton, where she had a private hospital. She died suddenly of heart disease on February 20, 1913. She was a member of the Lackawanna Medical Society, of the State and National American Medical Associations.

Dr. C. Annette Buckel was born in Warsaw, N. Y., in 1833. She lost her parents in infancy, but they left her a rich inheritance in a healthy body, a rare mental capacity, a fine spiritual nature, and an indomitable will. At fifteen years of age she determined to study medicine and by her own efforts, doing whatever she could find to do, she earned money to secure her medical education. She graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania in 1858. For a year she was a resident physician in the New England Hospital for Women in Boston. She did postgraduate work in New York, being associated there with Drs. Emily and Elizabeth Blackwell. She also worked with Dr. Zakrzewska and the Drs. Pope, of Boston, all pioneers and distinguished in their profession. She further spent two years studying in clinics in Vienna and Paris.

Dr. Buckel practised in Chicago for a year, and from there in 1863 she worked in the Civil War, helping to establish military hospitals in the Southwest. She was called by the grateful soldiers and co-workers the "Little Major." Among her papers were found testimonials from government officials expressing their high appreciation of her efficient and commendable service.

In 1878 she went to Oakland, Cal. As a physician she was in advance of her time in recognizing the vast superiority of prevention over the cure of disease. She was the president of the first certified milk commission on the Pacific Coast which had its birth in "The Home Club," in 1904. Outside of an active practice her spare moments were spent in working for civic betterment and nature study. She left her home and some money to be devoted to the education of defective and handicapped children.

She died of cerebral hemorrhage August 17, 1912.

Dr. Anna M. Longshore-Potts was born in Bucks Co., Pa., during 1829. She graduated from the Female College of Pennsylvania (now the Woman's Medical College) in 1851, being a member of the first graduating class. She practiced medicine in Langhorne and later opened an office in Philadelphia, where she remained until the early sixties, when she removed to Toledo, Ohio, staying there about one year. She then opened a sanitarium in Geneva, Ill., where she remained until 1867, when she located in Adrian, Mich., and practiced general medicine. About this time she began delivering lectures and later devoted most of her time to lecturing. She gave lectures in Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, the British Isles, India, Ceylon, and other countries en route.

She died in San Diego, Cal., October 24, 1912, in the eighty-fourth year of her age, from senile debility.

Dr. Helen Paschal-Proctor was born in Philadelphia, Pa., September 18, 1871. She received her early education in the public schools of that city and graduated from the Philadelphia Normal School. In 1905, she graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. After that she immediately began practicing in Philadelphia, at the same time doing clinical work in the Hospital of the Woman's Medical College. She was at first Assistant and finally Chief of the Obstetrical Department of the Northwestern Hospital of Philadelphia. She died in Philadelphia, January 23, 1913, from the effect of an ovarian cyst complicating pregnancy.

Dr. Harriet Adaline Thompson was born in West Springfield, Massachusetts, June 3, 1840. She was educated in the public schools, Williston Seminary of Easthampton, Mass., and Wheaton Female Seminary of Norton, Mass. She was of the Class of 1893 of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. After graduation she spent six months in a maternity hospital. She practised general medicine in Bridgeport, Connecticut, from 1894 until death. She was a member of the Fairfield Medical Association. Her death occurred April 18, 1913.
Dr. Alice Lillibridge was born in Blakeley, Pennsylvania, on June 30, 1878. Her early training was received in the public schools of Blakeley. She later graduated from the Ladies' Institute and spent two years in Bucknell University. In 1900 she graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. During her professional career she practised at Olyphant, Scranton, and Philadelphia. She was a member of the Lackawanna County Medical Society and of the American Medical Association. Her death occurred October 14, 1912, from cardiac disease.

Report accepted.

The President announced that later in the meeting Dr. Hall would read memorial to Drs. Keller and Alexander.

The report of the Committee on Fellowship was presented by Dr. Macfarlane, and read as follows:

REPORT OF THE FELLOWSHIP COMMITTEE

BY DR. CATHARINE MACFARLANE

The Fellowship Committee is pleased to report that our 1911 Alumnae Fellow, Dr. Martha Tracy, is now a member of the College Faculty, having this year been appointed Professor of Physiological Chemistry.

With reference to our 1912 Alumnae Fellow, the following correspondence may be of interest:

To the Faculty of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: The Fellowship Committee of the Alumnae Association takes great pleasure in notifying you that Dr. Berta Meine, the 1912 Alumnae Fellow, is expected to return to Philadelphia in the latter part of June, after having spent six consecutive months studying pathology and bacteriology in Zürich and Berlin.

The object of the Alumnae Fellowship being to raise the standard of the teaching force of the College, it is the hope and earnest wish of the Alumnae who support it, that there may be found for Dr. Meine, in the departments for which her work has specially fitted her, a teaching position which is in the line of promotion.

Hoping that this request may meet with your approval and co-operation we are, Respectfully yours,

The Committee on Fellowship,

Elifie R. Graff,
Mary R. Wilcox,
Catharine Macfarlane,
Elizabeth R. Bundy,
Ellen C. Potter,
per Catharine Macfarlane,
Chairman.